Thomas Aquinas College Seminar: Man: Made in the Image of God

In keeping with the Napa Institute Summer Conference’s theme of “What it Means to be Human,” Thomas Aquinas College invites you to read and discuss the first chapter of Genesis, along with St. Thomas Aquinas’s reflection on what it means for human beings to be made in God’s image. Dr. Paul O’Reilly, a 35-year veteran of the teaching faculty and TAC’s president, will lead a breakout session, “In God’s Image,” where attendees will analyze these short, highly accessible readings, in a seminar modeled after the College’s classroom conversations.

The Renewal of the Church: A Different Take
Rev. John Burns | Priest; Founder and President, Friends of the Bridegroom

We all recognize the Church needs renewal, but many of our strategies overlook a vital missing piece: Over the past fifty years, we have almost completely lost the presence the religious Sisters who built our schools and hospitals. A Church without Sisters is like a family without a mother.

Real conversations about the renewal of the Church must engage the question of the renewal of women’s religious life, for the benefit of all. Those conversations, which are urgently past due, will require a paradigm shift among the laity and the

The International Chair of Bioethics Jérôme Lejeune: Educating Servants of Life
Pablo Siegrist | General Director, the Lejeune Foundation
Dr. Monica Lopez Barahona | Ph.D. General Academic Director, the Biosciences Studies Center of Madrid
Moderator: Francis X. Maier | Senior Fellow, Catholic Studies Program, Ethics and Public Policy Center

The objective of this panel is to introduce the Mission and activity of the International Chair of Bioethics Jerome Lejeune, an independent international center for training, research, and dissemination of Bioethics from an ontologically founded personalistic point of view.

Venerable Jerome Lejeune considered the father of modern genetics, after his discovery in 1958 of trisomy 21, the genetic alteration responsible for Down syndrome, represents a new charism in the life of the Church: The Servant of Life. He opposed the main representatives of the culture of death who pursued the use of his discovery to kill the unborn with genetic diseases. He was candidate twice for the Nobel Prize in Medicine, he did not win it for his advocacy on behalf of his unborn patients with trisomy 21, whom he considered the most vulnerable. St John Paul II wrote of him that he was the "man for whom the defense of life became an apostolate. It is clear that in the current world situation this form of lay apostolate is particularly necessary. Today we wish to thank God, the sole Author of life, for everything that Professor Lejeune was for us, and for all he did to defend and to promote the dignity of human life" (Letter to Card. Jean-Marie Lustiger, Archbishop of Paris, April 4, 1994).

After the life and testimony of Venerable Prof. Jerome Lejeune, the Jerome Lejeune Foundation, originally created in Paris (France) immediately after his death, and with headquarters in different countries, develops a specific advocacy mission through the academic work in favor of the weakest of the weakest, in different languages. The Jerome Lejeune International Non-Profit Group dedicates to: 1) Medical Care, through outpatient clinics for people with intellectual disabilities and their families; 2) Biomedical Research, after more than 25 years of experience in fundamental and clinical research in favor of people with ID of genetic origin; and 3) to Advocate, defending human life and dignity worldwide, specifically in the situations of big vulnerability.

† Plenary Indulgence available, under the usual conditions, to the faithful who spend 30 minutes reading Sacred Scripture, or 30 minutes in Public Adoration, or who pray the Marian Rosary.

As a response to the crucial need of rebuilding a culture of life due to the drift of certain positions among many communities; and the subsequent opportunity to educate, in which Prof. Lejeune’s scientific knowledge and wisdom appear as a referral and a life-model, the Jerome Lejeune Foundation created in 2009, the International Chair of Bioethics Jerome Lejeune. Th e ICBJL is an educational service in Bioethics focused on the immense value that the life of every human being has, argued from science and reason. Its inspiration comes from the "Servants of Life" statement drawn up by Prof. Lejeune for the Pontifical Academy for Life. Realism obliges to respect a properly scientific attitude, free from any ideological or political temptation, and it reconciles today’s ethics with the natural morality of all time.

At the heart of the general cultural battle, the ICBJL brings a personalist, ontologically grounded anthropological vision and virtue ethics, which enables to meet bioethical challenges, targeting tomorrow’s decision-makers, from Scientists and Physicians to University Professors and Politicians. Through education, scientific research, dissemination and publications and advocacy for the most vulnerable, from conception to natural death, it has become an international reference at the service of human life.

As Catholics, the call to mission extends beyond our earthly lives, compelling us to actively participate in the Church’s apostolic work of spreading the Gospel, caring for our loved ones, and serving those in need. Indeed, as Catholics, we are called to restore all things in Christ. This breakout session addresses the integration of an individual’s vocation and personal mission into estate and philanthropic planning, while addressing the aspects of an estate plan that may be infused with Catholic values. Attendees will (i) leave the breakout session with an understanding of what makes a “Catholic” estate plan and (ii) explore how to create a legacy rooted in the Church’s teaching and apostolic mission, leveraging their resources to further their own vocation and build God’s kingdom on earth.

CONFERENCE AND DINNER ATTIRE: BUSINESS CASUAL

Pope St John Paul II said Catholic health care is “one of the most fundamental works of the Catholic Church in the United States...and one of the most significant services the Church offers to society...which penetrates and transforms the very fabric of American society.” The ministry of Catholic health care has the potential to ignite a spiritual and cultural revival needed to rebuild a culture of life in our country today. However, Christ’s healing ministry in America is threatened by economic and ethical challenges posed by a secularized medical industrial complex that has been infiltrated by a culture of death. To ensure not only the survival, but the flourishing of Catholic health care will require an intentional, collaborative effort of all disciplines involved in the delivery of medical care including medicine, law, bioethics, administration and business, theology, philosophy and pastoral care. An alliance of laity and religious with the guidance and support of our Bishops has been developed for this purpose. This is the mission of the Catholic Health Care Leadership Alliance (CHCLA) launched in 2022 by the Catholic Medical Association, Catholic Bar Association, National Catholic Bioethics Center, Catholic Benefits Association, Christ Medicus Foundation, the Franciscan Alliance Health System and a board of Episcopal Advisors. In this session the Board of Directors along with Bishop James Conley will outline the CHCLA’s vision for the renewal of a culture of life in healthcare through programs of education, evangelization, public advocacy and mutual support founded upon the moral and social doctrine of the Church.

The Purpose of Human Life - To Get To Heaven

Rev. Ambrose Criste | Norbertine Canon Regular, St. Michael’s Abbey

We set our goal in our heavenly homeland as our first intention; and as we live the life of sanctifying grace, step by step we become the kind of Christians transformed by grace into the Saints whom God wants us to be. If we live this transformed life of grace, we will take our place among the Saints in heaven when we die. We will also bring a whole host of people with us into this life of holiness, and eventually into heaven with us. Death and our personal judgment are inescapable realities that each of us is going to face; but we can live in the fulness of the life of grace even here on earth, even before the ultimate reward of heaven.

All investing is Impact Investing
John Coleman| Co-CEO, managing Partner, Sovereign’s Capital

Jesus called us to dedicate all the resources at our disposal to His purposes, our financial capital included. Christian individuals and institutions are typically quite thoughtful about their spending and charitable giving, but spend little time thinking about the impact their investment capital has on the world. As the ESG movement has shown, investment capital can have an enormous impact on culture and the lives of individuals. Now is the time for Christians to offer a distinctive approach to investing aligned with our Christian faith that can show a love of God, a love of neighbor, and a commitment to sharing the Gospel around the world.

Ministry to Men and Why it Matters
Deacon Harld Burke-Sivers | Deacon, Archdiocese of Portland (Oregon); Catholic Speaker and Best Selling Author

Deacon Harold will focus his presentation on why it is so important to grow ministry to men throughout North America and beyond. Catholic men are increasingly disconnected and isolated. We lack community, connection, and friendship with other men. This is crippling our families, our Church, and our culture. Men are not meant to live alone, separate from meaningful connection. However, the data is staggering: Around 50% of all US adults experience loneliness, and isolation from others. (Communio). 55% of Catholic men know fewer than 10 men on a first name basis. (New Emangelization Survey). 31% of men have no close friendships with other parish men. (New Emangelization Survey). Fatherless families have increased from 5.6% in the 1960s to 42.2% in 2021. (Centers for Disease Control). When Catholic parishes aren’t a source of brotherhood...men are driven to isolation, loneliness, and ineffectiveness at home and beyond. Deacon Harold will discuss how this can be addressed at the parish level by igniting, empowering, and equipping ministry to men locally which will lead to growth in our dioceses, then regionally, and throughout the USA and Canada.

Today's Battle for Women’s Athletics
Samantha Kelley| Founder/President, FIERCE Athlete Inc.

The eyes of the world have never been so focused on female athletics. Viewership and following is at an all-time high, but women’s sports has never been under so much attack, as men are now being allowed to compete against women. Serving as a microcosm for society’s greater battle, women’s sports is the place where people are being forced to face the reality of biology and the inherent differences between men and women, as designed by God. Therefore, it is necessary to discuss God’s true intention for sport as an avenue for human development, growth in virtue, and spiritual maturity but also how this ideal has been corrupted. Come learn about the current battle for women’s sports against transgenderism and woke activism, and how we reclaim sport and the greater culture, allowing women to live fully as feminine, fierce, competitive athletes.

The Museum of the Bible invites you to behold a rare and exquisite illuminated "Pocket Bible" created circa 1250. This specific Pocket Bible is notable not only for its beauty and excellent condition, but also for its fascinating history, having been produced for a student or professor at the University of Paris, around the time when St. Thomas Aquinas first taught there. The curriculum of this Catholic institution, which grew out of the cathedral school of Paris, was designed to develop the whole person by concentrating on the arts, law, medicine, and theology. Such medieval institutions spurred scientific inquiry and encouraged deep reflection on creation and its creator, ultimately laying the groundwork for the Scientific Revolution. The presentation will unveil exclusive insights into the museum’s collections that illuminate Catholic history, alongside other unique offerings for attendees.

The Free Exercise Clause of the First Amendment recognizes and guarantees the inalienable right to express one’s religious convictions both privately and publicly. Naturally, public expression extends to professional life. We mustn’t leave our well-formed conscience at the door to our workplace. Yet, that is precisely what is expected of many health care professionals. This expectation harms the health care professional, the patient, and the overall profession. In response, this session explores the indispensability of religious freedom in health care to the common good of society.

Challenging ESG: Protecting Christian Values in Investments
Richard Todd | CEO/Co-founder, Innovest Portfolio Solutions
John Coleman | Co-CEO/Managing Partner, Sovereign’s Capital
Bridgett Wagner /

In recent years, there has been a growing emphasis on ESG (Environmental, Social, and Governance) investing and DEI (Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion) practices within the business sector. ESG and DEI can seem advantageous to business practices, however they can pose challenges for Catholics seeking to live out their faith. In this panel discussion, we will discuss why ESG and DEI are problematic for Catholics, opportunities for Christian values investing in the public and private markets, the importance of getting proxy voting right, and how to implement and monitor a Catholic values portfolio. There is a perception in that Catholic values portfolios give up returns, which we will prove is not the case.
